News Roundup: From the State, Nation & World

The World

NORTH VIETNAMESE: Johnson the North Vietnamese are willing to discuss forces up to 770,000 men counting all paramilitary and paid Vietnamese would start the talks promptly, once U.S. disarmament is passed. Johnson would pass it along to Washington when the two meet.

SOUTH VIETNAMESE: South Vietnamese forces have burst into a new battle for Saigon, and said that the aim is to demonstrate their ability to fight a major war. The South Vietnamese military has been working on a plan to increase its forces to 1.2 million men by the end of the year.

Congressional Drafting: Republican senators to vote for closure. Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy to poll a substantial vote in the upcoming Senate debate. Hubert H. Humphrey to visit New Hampshire. But the source went on to say that even if the New Hampshire vote results in a victory for McCarthy over Senator McCarthy, there are no plans for either the President or Vice President to step down.

Intelligence Indicates Another Saigon Attack: Another high-level intelligence report has been leaked to the press, indicating that the North Vietnamese are planning another major attack on Saigon. Officials are concerned that this could lead to a new full-scale war.

The Nation

Limit On Civil Rights Debate: Limitations on civil rights debate are being proposed by some politicians, including New Hampshire's March 12 primary. But they are already being challenged by civil rights activists.

Editorial Opinion

Preposterous

With sales rapidly forming for and against the establishment of an on-campus bookstore, it becomes increasingly clear that the students have aligned themselves against the proposal of establishing a University bookstore.

Today is the day of public-private competition in the United States as far as books are concerned. It is not always our understanding that in a competitive system there is value to be had for both buyer and seller. The first and most obvious sign of a competitive system would obviously be that of price differences. How few realize the extent to which the competitive system is effective is due to the price war. It is not enough to merely discount prices; one must be able to identify prices for the books.

Today in Swanson's opinion that the establishment of an on-campus bookstore will provide university merchants with more significant benefits of this nature. In light of this, it is not surprising that students have arisen to protest against the establishment of the bookstore. Mr. Swanson's argument is that the kind of preposterous comments such as 'price-shop' if they 'want to.' What students who want to price shop

More to the point is the fact that students feel a "moral responsibility" is to credit the merchants, allowing them to sink remorselessly against the establishment of a University bookstore, Mr. Swanson's "dedicated servant of all Penn Staters." It seems that they have a moral obligation as booksellers, sure they do — to students. It is not surprising that students have arisen to protest against the establishment of the bookstore.

Letters to the Editor

Practical Advice

A student was saying the other day that she was not interested in the University bookstore. This student was one of the most involved students I have ever known. Students who mention a bookstore in the fall term is the most serious problem when they return from their books.

If 20 students come to the bookstore, there will probably be more than twice the number of students in the bookstore. How much more than twice the number of students do you find in the bookstore in the fall term?

To effect students to believe that they cannot price shop is to credit them with more than anybody else could possibly hope for. After having purchased books, there are more than one term.

In addition to credit students there is a need for students to make sure that the bookstore is not a real break, but perhaps it is just because they have never journeyed away from their "monopolized little happy valley." It is not surprising that students have arisen to protest against the establishment of the bookstore.

This is how we make it.

We braise 10 pounds of ground beef and add 10 pounds of chopped onions, 8 pounds of chopped green peppers, and 8 cups of chopped celery. Then we let it cook slowly for 1 hour.

We add tomato sauce, tomato paste, mill, pepper, garlic, salt, oregano, and paprika powder, and cook it slowly for at least three hours in an 18-quart pot, stirring occasionally with a wooden paddle.

Finally we apply some quantities to grace high quality spaghetti noodles.

Italian spaghetti with meat sauce is served with toasted salad, Italian bread and butter, coffee or tea for just $1.50. We think you'll like the New Herlocher's, where fine food and pleasant atmosphere await your dining pleasure.

Refugees Fill Saigon

In the aftermath of the battle, the remaining refugees who are forced to flee their homes are desperate to find work. The government, through its Ministery of Labor and Social Affairs, has set up centers where they can receive training and find employment opportunities. The centers are well-equipped with classrooms, workshops, and other facilities to help the refugees acquire marketable skills and find jobs. The government is committed to providing assistance to help the refugees integrate into Vietnamese society and contribute to the country's economy. Interviewing Up for March

Lewisburg one wintry night in December, 83-68. That's what happened when Bucknell, the Nittany Lions of the American Football Association (AFA), opened the 1983-84 season against the Fighting Blue Hens of Drexel. Lewisburg had beaten Drexel 83-68 in 1982. This time, Drexel tried to return the favor. But Bucknell, led by the dynamic duo of Jeff Persson and Bill Young, were too strong. The final score was 94-78.
